

Why Tanzania

“Safari” is a Swahili word originating in East Africa meaning a Journey to the wild animals this revealing that the region is rich in wildlife. It is a fact that there is no better place to enjoy the enriching free moving wildlife experience than in Tanzania. The country’s game viewing experiences are widely regarded as the best in Africa. In Tanzania, one will see endless herds of wildebeest and zebras trekking across the plains, followed by predators-lion, leopard, cheetah, and hyena. Tanzania is also rich in other animals including the largest population of Elephant in the world, Zebra, rhinoceros, and others more, not forgetting a wide range of bird species residing in the wild.

The country boasts of its beautiful beaches, huge wonderful lakes and it’s in Tanzania that you will see and climb the highest mountain in Africa, Kilimanjaro (snow capped). Real Adventure is here.

Seasons and Best Time

Low Tourism Season

The long rains fall from the late March to late May and this makes the period neither perfect for safari nor for Climbing and Zanzibar Beach Excursions. It is undoubtedly fantastic to go for safari just after the rain seasons as the rain creates greenish vegetation so becomes much more beautiful and less dust.

High Tourism Season

This season starts from June to October and from December to early March. This is a dry season and most dusty in Tanzania. This is the best time for Safari (there is less vegetation so animals are easily viewed), Climbing and Zanzibar Beach Excursions. During this season, there are so many tourists flowing to Tanzania, as a result it may be difficult to get a flight if not booked early and in that we recommend you book your flight (early) before booking for safari in Tanzania.

During October it rains but the rain doesn't fall continuously hence remains fantastic for safaris although sometimes when the rain falls may disperse animals.

Recommended Best Time

Except during rains, the other periods are proper for safaris, climb and Zanzibar. However, for safari, we recommend late May, June, and November as in these months there are less tourists in Tanzania contrary to tourist peak months of July, august, December and January.

The prices depend on whether is a budget camping, luxury camping, lodge safari, Zanzibar excursions, trekking and the number of people in a group. Also many tourists prefer combined program like safari, trekking and Zanzibar beach excursions.
